Golf Club receives $50,000 CFEP grant

Elk Point Golf and Country Club has received a $50,000 grant under the Community Facility Enhancement Program to help finance the installation of grass greens and an irrigation system at the Elk Point Golf Course. MLA John Drobot, who made the presentation to Golf Club President Bill Jennissen, and the Honorable Ken Kowalski, Minister responsible for Lotteries and Gaming, made the announcement regarding the grant.

The grant is part of a recently concluded three year program which provided lottery funds for the repair, renovation, upgrading or expansion of a wide variety of community facilities. A total of $100 million from Alberta's Lottery Fund was allocated to the program at its introduction in 1988, with sport, cultural, recreational and other family and community - use facilities as the funding beneficiaries. Applications to the program were accepted up to September 1, 1991, with applicants matching a minimum of 50 percent of facility enhancement project funding, and 25 percent of a community facility assessment study.

Mr. Kowalski stated that "together with their families, Albertans are able to enjoy the many benefits to community life that have been made available by the Community Facility Enhancement Program."

Mr. Drobot added, "facilities like these play an important role in enriching local recreational activities, and I am pleased this worthy project has received lottery funding through the Community Facility Enhancement Program."

Jennissen says the huge project is "on its way" with a dugout to hold irrigation water completed and some of the fairways redone. Material for tee boxes and other construction is on hand and will be put to use shortly, and a wet well and water line from the Town raw water reservoir will also be installed soon.

In addition to the CFEP grant, the Golf and Country Club is getting donations from local service clubs and corporate donors toward the project, which will give Elk Point a much upgraded facility for the enjoyment of local golf enthusiasts and tourists alike.

Grant Aids Golf Course Redevelopment

MLA John Drobot had the pleasant duty of presenting a $50,000 Community Facility Enhancement Program grant to the Elk Point Golf and Country Club to assist in their ambitious project of revamping the course and upgrading to grass greens. From left to right are Golf Club Treasurer Mark Wilson, President Bill Jennissen, MLA Drobot, and avid golfer Dave Yake. The project will greatly enhance both recreational and tourism prospects for Elk Point.

Schools, teachers come to agreement

Bruce Campbell
Staff Writer

Teachers and the North Central East Alberta School Authorities Association appear to have settled their year-long contract dispute.

An agreement was made after a 16-hour negotiation session took place Friday at the St. Paul Provincial Building, according to a statement released by school authorities.

Teachers will be voting to ratify the proposal this Thursday in Smoky Lake.

Ratification by the schools should take place by the end of September, according to the NCEASAA press release.

Teachers have been working without a contract since Sept. 1, 1991. The tentative agreement is for two years from Sept. 1, 1991 to Aug. 31, 1993.

According to one teacher, the contract calls for the teachers' to receive a five per cent salary increase retroactive to Sept. 1, 1991 and a 3.5 per cent increase effective Sept. 1, 1992.

The issue of maternity leave has also been reworded in a fashion consistent with the recent Susan Parsons ruling and is agreeable to both parties, according to NCEASAA bargaining agent Dave Flockhart.

The Parsons ruling states a woman on maternity leave may receive full pay and benefits for a period designated by a physician.

Flockhart said he did not wish to comment on any of the financial details of the agreement until it has been ratified.

The NCEASAA consists of school boards from the counties of Smoky Lake, Thorhild, St. Paul, Two Hills and the Glen Avon and the Regional High School school boards.

Charlene Baker
Fairgrounds Chairperson

On Saturday, August 29, 1992 the Elk Point Agricultural Society held its Annual Open AEF HERITAGE / BLUESKY CLASSIC HORSE SHOW at the Ag Society's Fairgrounds. The day was sunny but the show was moved inside the Ag Barn due to a cold icy wind for the morning classes of Showmanship, Western and English Equitation and Pleasure, Junior Pleasure Horse, Trail and Maiden Exhibitor. It was then transferred back out to the big ring when the wind died down and continued on with the afternoon classes of Jumping, Reining, Western Riding, Barrels and Poles. The Show Committee would like to thank the exhibitors for being so patient and understanding with the interruptions. This year the show drew some 68 riders out to test their skills. The classes were very large and the competition was tough. Our judge was Kory Merrill, Trainer at High Gate Farms in Edmonton who did an excellent job in adjudicating

the show.

We would like to thank Cartier's Western Wear, Bailey's Western Wear and HV Horse Centre for their continued support over the years with the High Point Awards. The committee and exhibitors really appreciate this added extra. The classes eligible for accumulating points for the High Point Blanket Awards were Showmanship, Trail, Western Pleasure and Equitation, English Pleasure and Equitation, Western Riding and Western Reining.

The 10 and Under blanket was donated by HV Horse Centre in Bonnyville and was won by Lana Graham and her horse 'Rafferty Raffene.' Runner up was Ashley Larson on 'Tivio,' who was only one point away. The 11 to 15 blanket donated by Terry Cartier's Western Wear in Vegreville was won by Laura Begg and her horse 'Inspiration Seeker.' It was a tight race with Shanna Baker on 'Kinda Catty' coming in a close second by 2 points. The Senior blanket, 16 and Over, donated by Bailey's Western Wear of St. Paul was won by Charlene Baker and her 4 year old mare 'Serene Liberty Lee.' Darcy Reid on 'Sweet Eclipse,' behind by 7 points, was the runner up.

This year along with our regular Jackpot Barrels and Pole classes a Special Open Barrel Jackpot at $15 was added. The committee was very pleased that so many barrel racers came out to participate.

Our show would not be a success without our wonderful sponsors. This year our major sponsors were Amoco Petroleum, Norcen Energy Resources, Pan Canadian Petroleum, Alberta Truss, and Klinger's Oilfield Service. We sincerely thank our Rosette Ribbon sponsors (1st to 6th place) for their help: John Zenko, John Adams and Family, Heavy Crude, Toronto Dominion Bank, and Petro Canada, Bonnyville.

Elk Point's local businesses once again came through with great support for the 32 classes offered this year. Prize money offered was 1st - $25, 2nd - $15, 3rd - $10 and 4th - $5. We cannot thank them

FGM Welcomes New Teachers

New teachers at FGM

F. G. Miller Junior - Senior High School has welcomed three new staff members for 1992 - 93.

Adriana Fadi is in her first year of teaching, and will be instructing students in Business Education and English. She comes to Elk Point from Edmonton, and says "I really like it here. I could see living here forever." Among the attributes of our community, Ms Fadi says "everyone here has a sense of humor. Maybe it's because they don't have to fight city traffic."

Dalane Huber is from a much smaller and closer community, Ashmont, and says Elk Point is "bigger than where I'm from, but the school is much the same size." Ms Huber is also in her first year of teaching, and will be instructing Physical Education and English Language Arts. She finds FGM "great, so far" and is looking forward to coaching basketball (which she learned from Ashmont's legendary coach Rand Rasmussen) and cross-country running.

Gwen Werstiuk taught previously in Glendon, although her original home town was Halifax, Nova Scotia. The Home Economics teacher, who is filling in for Cheri Lindquist for this semester due to the latter's maternity leave, enjoys the atmosphere of small towns and "welcomes the opportunity to come and be part of this school."

Support local businesses

Dear Editor:

Would you please publish this letter in your people as I believe the contents should be brought to the attention of all residents of Elk Point.

By now, the majority of the businesses in town have been approached by people asking them to display books, flowers, etc. in their place of business, and the individuals would come back and pick up any orders that may have been taken. Some of these people go door to door as well, also people selling fish, fruit, frozen foods and so on.

I would appreciate the co-operation of businesses and citizens to please ask these people to produce an Elk Point Business Licence before you deal with them. The Town has a Business Licence Bylaw, however the Bylaw Officer cannot cover the type of people who approach you at your business or your home without someone letting the Town Office know that they are being solicited.

These people do not contribute in any way to our Town, perhaps at least the Town could get the price of a peddler's licence from them.

Let's support our local businesses.

Yours truly,
J. Curt Svendsen Sr.

News From The Forts

Louise Crane
Supervisor of Visitor Services

Congratulations to the Elk Point Historical Society in being selected by the Alberta Museums Association for the Recognition of Contribution Award. This honor is a direct result of all the hard work done by its members in preserving a portion of Alberta's history. Presentation of the award will be November 1 at the Association's Annual Meeting. Elk Point can be very proud of the small group that has contributed such recognition to the town and district.

September 7 was the last day the centre was open to the public at large until next May. We had 6800 visitors which was over the expected minimum of 5000. Thank you for the great support!

Fort George - Buckingham House will be open for groups by appointment. Please call 724-2611. Keep in mind all the bonspiels in the area over the winter.

On September 2, the Elk Point Hospital long term residents came out for a tour and picnic. The brought with them some sunshine on an otherwise very cloudy day.

Reminder: Winter office hours- Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Many people have asked what happens to the supervisor during the winter months. I spent most of the summer travelling in order to set up programs and introduce Fort George - Buckingham House to the Lakeland area. This will continue with heavy emphasis on school programs. The programs are also available to senior groups and community groups, should they like a guest speaker to talk on the fur trade era, historic tourism or any related topic.

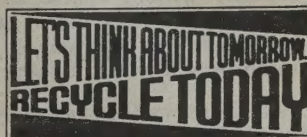

FALL RENDEZVOUS - September 19

The activities for the day are falling into place and it looks as though we will have a super time. The factor from Fort Edmonton will be arriving by canoe about 3:00 p.m. Anyone with river canoe experience wishing to join the brigade may bring their life jackets and meet at the southeast side of Elk Point Bridge at 1:45 p.m. The brigade will be met by our wintering partner for Fort George, Larry Winkler.

SEPTEMBER 26 - NATIONAL FLAG RAISING DAY

At 11:00 a.m. on September 26, Fort George - Buckingham House will raise both flags in honor of Canada's first National Flag Raising Day.

Time to do better

Now that the kids are back in school, the Fair is over and done with, we've had our first blizzard and heavy frost, leaves are falling from the trees - and, I'm sure, harvest would be underway if it is dry enough - then, with September here, we can say it is indeed autumn. And all very early, to say the least, excepting the Fair, which fell about a week too late, and, one could say, was 'frosted.'

I thought, considering the mean weather of the past season, that there was a tremendous display of fruits, vegetables and flowers, and congratulate those who exhibited, not only for growing such nice produce in such a dried-up year, but in being nimble enough to rescue it from Old Man Winter when he sneaked in quite out of season, to do his 'white' work.

My sister Grace's birthday was September 25, and Mother always used to say we should expect a snowstorm for Grace's birthday. But this year we were a month-plus early. What kind of winter shall we receive, I wonder? Still on the weather, our total moisture-fall for August was 1.71 inches, including the snow melt (on my yard).

Hint: re those little walnut-sized potatoes you are likely to find so many of - hose them off, (well, pick them up first) and cook them. If desired, you can dunk in cold water after draining, and skin, or as is, put them in bags and freeze. They are not exactly like fresh-from-the-garden, new potatoes, but cook up with your frozen peas, in a white sauce, and an onion or two. In winter, they'll taste pretty good. And won't be wasted.

Following the news, as I seem to do, with a conclusion of sorts finally reached on the eternal "Constitution" wrangle, and it seems we will now have to have a nation wide vote on how many senators we need, or don't need, to run the country.

As I predicted earlier, it's got down to nit-picking of a major variety. First it was 3-E senators, a ridiculous notion, since as provinces, we are not equal. Then they've decided we need Equal numbers of this and that; equal Anglophones, equal Francophones, equal Native representatives. Now they are asking, as I predicted, equal seats for men and women. This presupposes that we all think and act according to which nest we were hatched in and whether we wear skirts or slacks.

I've got news for them. Some of us think - and would vote - individually, according to our beliefs, ideals and reasoning, not according to where we were born, or by whom we were sired, nor yet according to our sex. Some of us have been known to use our brains, which has little to do with any of the above.

Did they mention equal numbers of senators in the various skin colors of humanity? That will probably be the next chant. Or perhaps the color of hair - if any.

My own choice would be to have representing me, persons who are first and foremost CANADIANS. Secondly, they should represent approximately equal numbers of citizens, and thirdly, they should be elected according to if they have any brains, and are willing to use them for the betterment of our country. As to color, sex, place of origin, ancestors or wealth, these are matters of no note to me. Just let them look after our country, keeping it strong and free. That will do just fine.

When we look around the world, as depicted on our daily news, we can plainly see what this senseless struggle for dominance by race, or creed or religion or color leads to. It's death, killing and maiming, destruction of growth done by other hands, buildings, roads, bridges. It's tearing down, rather than building up. Is this what we need here in Canada? I say NO.

Alberta Trails

By Irene Magnusson

What we need more than anything else, is to learn to love our fellow man. We MUST feed the needy, rather than destroy his wherewithall to feed himself. And somehow help those in need, and who will, help themselves. I don't think we can say that here in Canada, there are no needy. We have but to look around us - or, again - follow the news. The need is there.

So much for my sermon of the day. We have much to be thankful for. So far, we haven't fallen prey to such destructive weather as those in the tornado/hurricane areas, where all is destroyed, including lives, in some cases. Do we have any "Help the Hurricane Victims" relief organization set up anywhere? To whom shall we send our donations, as we should be doing?

We all know - or should - i that the Red Cross is trying its level best to help desperate families in war-torn areas, also in the flood-stricken areas and in the dried-out, starvation areas. They need really BIG donations to carry this out. And it doesn't have to be 'only in March.'

We know these efforts to help are being hindered by murderous throngs, for reasons we have no need for here in Canada, such as race, religion, color or language. And just plain greed. They take lives of humans as readily as you would step on a fly.

Please, people, let this not become our way, the Canadian way. We still have time to do better.

Resolution at last

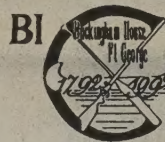

Finally, our students can put their minds to the business of learning, instead of worrying whether their education will be interrupted by yet another school strike.

Twice in the past nine years we have seen students go from elation at an unexpected holiday from their books to frustration at all the class hours they were missing and would never be able to catch up, as negotiators bargained with their futures.

Both sides have their points: educators spend many years in expensive training to learn to teach our children, and feel they should be paid accordingly, and like workers in other fields, have other conditions of employment which need be spelled out. The municipal jurisdictions which pay the educators' wages can only squeeze so much money out of the taxpayers' often rather skinny pocketbooks.

To negotiate a fair agreement that both sides can live with would not be easy. However, it seems to have been possible. Had it come sooner, parents, teachers and board members would have been less grey and and have needed less antacid medication, and students could have done their back to school shopping without wondering "will I need this, or will I be out looking for a job?"

Does negotiation HAVE to take that long? It's something to think about for the next time contracts run out.

Billie Milholland

"But what did they eat?"
That is the most often asked question when I talk to any group about the early fur trade, and the answer is... much more than you'd think.

It is no surprise that early fur traders ate a lot of meat - moose, deer, buffalo, ducks, geese, swans, cranes, grouse, rabbit and fish. But what is surprising to many people is the variety of berries, mushrooms and plants that were eaten.

About this time of year, when the supply canoes and boats had not yet returned from York Factory on the Hudson's Bay and from Montreal, provisions like flour, rice, oatmeal, barley and molasses had run out. While waiting for the groceries, fort inhabitants would have to eat whatever the women could find to cook. Lucky for them, the women were not accustomed to having groceries brought in and had a few tricks up their sleeves for lean times.

Cattail and bulrush flour was as close as the nearest slough. To test the feasibility of this foodstuff, last week Faye Smith and I waded into a slough at dusk, in the rain, and managed to grub out some cattail and bulrush roots.

The country wives at the forts would have laughed us into the next county if they'd seen us, covered in fluorescent rain gear, bent over, grunting and groaning, tugging and yanking and swearing. We had a potato fork when we should have had a shovel. I had running shoes when I should have had rubber boots, and of course, no gloves. Well, would those early women have worn gloves? I don't think so. The big difference, of course, is that those fur trade women knew what they were doing and most likely didn't wait until dark to do it.

After a few false starts,

Faye caught on to the trick of following from one root to another and we did get a five gallon pail full. Then came the peeling. Let me tell you, that's a job best done right away. When they were wet, the skins came off like banana peels. But the ones I left over night... by the time I got to them the next morning somebody had crazy glued them on.

I boiled the peeled roots for about an hour and they had a pleasant cream of wheat texture and flavor when they were done. The big difference was the long tough fibers that you're supposed to remove. I was supposed to lay those cooked roots out in the sun to dry, then pound them gently to remove the strings and then gather the resulting flour. I'm still waiting for the sun to come out, and have since eaten those few roots like artichokes, pulling the soft stuff off the fibers with my teeth. Faye doesn't like cream of wheat, so she might have starved waiting for the fall boats to arrive.

A different way to go holidaying

Emily MacDonald

When I looked out my window, there it was: a boat on a trailer, pulled by horses, with regular wheels on the trailer, and some chuckwagon wheels in front. I just had to catch up to them to find out all about it.

They told me they had done this for five years. I thought it neat for our Bicentennial year, different, unusual and really quite exciting enough to make me want to write about it.

The boat / trailer was pulled by a faithful team of horses, a well matched team named Buck and Squaw. Being purchased from the natives was the reason for their names. In the boat was all their camping equipment, with owner Bill Isert driving the team. His wife Rhonda and young son Colby road in the boat, also Jackie Ford and baby Orrin, only one month old. Baby Orrin had camped out at two weeks old, I was told.

They had two outriders along on the trip, Roger Ford, Jackie's man, on a horse called Gismo and a friend, Kevin McDonald, on a horse called Nick. Last but not least was a very well behaved Australian Shepherd - collie cross dog named Dundee, running along keeping guard.

These people travelled all the way from Dewberry up to the Garnier Lakes, which would be about forty miles. They did some fishing and horseback riding that weekend. Hats off to the dear old ponies that made it possible. A neat and cheap way to take a holiday, I would say.

Unique Way To Go

Now that's fuel conservation! Two horsepower is all that is required to tow this boat and trailer combo.

Bicentennial Artists

Earlier this year, the Elk Point Municipal Hospital's Long Term Care section sponsored an art contest based on the Bicentennial of Fort George - Buckingham House. The winners, left to right, were Chris Lecopoy, second, Claudia Naber, first, and Carrie Baumgardner, third. Their artwork was displayed in the Long Term Wing and was much enjoyed by the residents and their visitors.

Hospital Auxiliary continuing the action

Irene Magnusson

The Elk Point Hospital Auxiliary, in their first meeting of the season, shifted into their usual active gear, with plans for the coming winter.

With a dozen or so members present, minutes and reports were heard and dealt with. Chairman Susan MacKinnon reported that the pop machine, being for sale, has been purchased, for use of the Canteen.

Secretary Jennie Shmyr read the minutes, and added that a lawn chair has been purchased. Violet McFadyen, in charge of the canteen, stated that help is still needed there. Regrettably, the UPC labels, one of the group's fundraising projects, have been discontinued - so all you householders who have been clipping labels for the Auxiliary, may cease to do so. A doll offer, considered for sale, will not be undertaken. The canteen has no more Family Tree books for sale. Otherwise, all is well.

The Treasurer's report was heard, and decisions made on a number of items needed by the Hospital. A half dozen or so items were discussed and approved. These will be ordered soon.

A regional meeting of Auxiliaries will be held in Athabasca, September 10.

The matter of the STARS (Shock Trauma Air Rescue) Cookbook, which the Auxiliary has on hand for sale, was discussed. It was concluded that, inasmuch as the Air Rescue is a vital life-saving system, and they are in need of funding, the Auxiliary should try to promote the sale of these cookbooks, which are unique in that the recipes are all favorites of various outstanding citizens and politicians. Look for them in the Canteen.

Re the Canteen, various adjustments are in the offing, and will give a more spacious and accessible look (soon).

Exploring Past And Future

Kirsten Sanders saw landmarks of the past, such as this statue, along with exciting new technological developments, during her recent expedition to Montreal.

Student explores Futuretech

Heinsburg High School student Kirsten Sanders was among 125 students from across Canada who were chosen to attend a five day FuturTech conference in Montreal, Quebec, August 15 to 20. These students, and another 125 who visited Edmonton and Calgary, were chosen from a thousand applicants for the program, which was part of activities marking Canada's 125th birthday.

Participants stayed at the St. Jean Air Base just outside of Montreal, and enjoyed a busy schedule of tours and social gatherings. They toured old and new Montreal, plus technical facilities such as Merck Frosst, a biomedical firm where they saw laboratory experiments regarding the making and packaging of drugs, CAE Electronics, a large factory which designs and manufactures flight simulators, Pratt and Whitney, which designs and manufactures aircraft motors, Position and Northern Telecom.
